9–Gov. Thomas Roberts (d 1673), historic founder of N.H.; gov. of Dover Colony; pres. of the ct.; Gov. Roberts and William Hilton among the earliest and most influential of first settlers in N.H., built houses on what are now opposite sides of street at Dover Point; afterwards Gov. Roberts moved further up the Neck toward what is now Dover and became owner there of very extensive holdings of land running down to the Piscataqua river on one side and the Cochecho on the other; the "Bound Oak," over 500 years old, which marked the boundary line between the extensive tracts of land which he gave to his two sons, is still standing and of great interest to visitors; there are still standing Roberts' houses at Dover Neck; a new stone was placed at his grave a few years ago, in place of the crumbling one there, by the Society of Colonial Wars (see illustration);
